

FAQ

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT

DWI

- 1. What is BAC? BAC is short for “blood alcohol concentration” and refers to the amount of alcohol in your bloodstream. BAC, registered in percentages, is measured by breath, blood or urine testing and is often used by law enforcement to determine whether or not a motorist is “legally drunk.”
- 2. What is DUI? DUI refers to Driving Under the Influence of drugs, alcohol, or a combination of both. Drugs are considered an intoxicating substance and can refer to a variety of different drugs, including marijuana, cocaine, heroin, ecstasy and other judgment impairing substances used by themselves or in conjunction with alcohol. This also includes the use of prescription medications. New York State laws make further distinction between DWI and DWAI.
- 3. What is DWI? DWI refers to Driving While Intoxicated. DWI, a crime, is having a BAC of .08 or greater or other evidence of intoxication. DWI is defined as the act of operating a motor vehicle after having consumed alcohol to the point of intoxication.
- 4. What is DWAI? DWAI refers to driving while ability impaired with regards to mental and motor skills.
DWAI/Alcohol refers to Driving While Ability Impaired by alcohol. DWAI is having a BAC of .05 to .07.
DWAI/Drugs refers to Driving While Ability Impaired by drugs
DWAI/Combination refers to Driving While Ability Impaired by a combined influence of drugs and alcohol or more than one drug.
- 5. What is AGGRAVATED DWI? Aggravated DWI refers to Aggravated Driving While Intoxicated where the blood-alcohol content is found to be 0.18 or higher.
- 6. What is ZERO TOLERANCE LAW? Zero Tolerance refers to a driver who is less than 21 years of age and who drives with a BAC of .02 to .07 thus violating the Zero Tolerance Law.
- 7. What is a BREATHALYZER? Breathalyzer is a device used to measure one’s blood alcohol content (BAC) from a breath sample. The Breathalyzer test is usually administered when the driver is pulled over at roadside. The driver blows into a device and readings indicate the suspect’s blood alcohol content level (BAC).
- 8. What is IGNITION INTERLOCK DEVICE? An Ignition Interlock device is an in-car alcohol breath screening device that prevents a vehicle from starting if it detects a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) over a pre-set limit of .02. The device is located inside the vehicle, near the driver’s seat, and is connected to the engine’s ignition system.
- 9. What is CHEMICAL TEST REFUSAL? A Chemical Test Refusal is when a motorist refuses to submit to a chemical test (normally a test of breath, blood, or urine). The result of this action can be a revocation of his or her driver’s license for at least one year, and a civil penalty fine of at least $500.

THE PENALTIES

License Suspension: A license suspension means you may not drive for the period of your suspension.

License Revocation: A license revocation means your driving privileges have been cancelled. You will likely need to reapply for a driver’s license after a designated length of time.

Misdemeanor: A crime less serious than a felony. Misdemeanors are sometimes categorized by degrees. 1st degree misdemeanors are the most serious class (with the highest fines and penalties), 2nd degree misdemeanors are less serious, and so on.

Felony: A serious crime, such as murder, rape or burglary, for which there is a stricter sentence given than for a misdemeanor. Some DWIs are elevated to felony status even without an injury or death, if the suspect has a given number of prior DWI convictions.
